

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

1854.

THE plan upon which the "PENNY CENSUS" has been compiled, will be understood by a reference to its pages. It consists mainly of the population of every town and village of one thousand inhabitants and upwards, at the last census of 1851. It also furnishes an approximate account of the population of EVERY town, village, and hamlet in the country; for it will be understood that every place not inserted contains less than one thousand persons. The whole has been carefully compiled from the fourteen folio volumes, or Blue Books, as they are called, published by the Census Commissioners.

THE CENSUS.

The number of people in Great Britain on 31st of March, 1851, was twenty-one millions one hundred and twenty-one thousand nine hundred and sixty-seven, made up as follows :—

	Area in Square Miles.	Males.	Females.	Total.
England	50,922	8,281,734	8,040,154	16,921,888
Scotland	31,324	1,375,479	1,513,263	2,888,742
Wales	7,398	499,491	506,230	1,005,721
Islands in British Seas	394	66,854	76,272	143,126
Army, Navy, Merchant Service and Persons } Abroad	..	162,490	..	162,490
	90,038	10,386,048	10,735,919	21,121,967

The report of the Census Commissioners gives the following illustration to assist in forming a distinct conception of this great number. "The Building of the Great Exhibition in London, enclosed eighteen acres, and 50,000 or 60,000 often entered it daily; on the 9th of October, 93,224 persons filled its floors and galleries, and could almost be surveyed by the eye at one time. Of 100,000 persons a general notion can be formed by all those who witnessed this spectacle at the Crystal Palace; it is a number greater than were ever at one time in a building covering eighteen acres, but somewhat less than the greatest number (109,915) that ever entered it in one day. The population, then, of Great Britain, including men, women, and children, exceeds 211 hundred thousands, and at the rate of 100,000 a-day could have passed through the building in 211 days."

Allowing a square yard for each person, the whole population could have stood on seven square miles.

Nearly all these twenty-one millions of people will be dead before 100 years have rolled away, but some few will be alive in 1951.

POPULATION IN PRECEDING YEARS FROM 1801.

The following table shows the population at each Census from 1801 to 1851:—

DATE of the ENUMERATIONS.	PERSONS.
	Great Britain and Islands in the British Seas.	England and Wales.	Scotland.	Islands in the British Seas.
March 10, 1801	10,917,433	9,156,171	1,678,452	82,810
May 27, 1811	12,424,120	10,454,529	1,884,044	85,517
May 28, 1821	14,402,643	12,172,664	2,137,325	92,654
May 28, 1831	16,564,138	14,051,986	2,405,610	106,542
June 7, 1841	18,813,786	16,035,198	2,652,339	126,249
March 31, 1851	21,121,976	18,054,170	2,922,362	145,433

The population has thus very nearly doubled itself in fifty years. Computations show that it will exactly double itself in another fifty-two years and six months, if the same rate of increase continue.

PROPORTION OF MALES AND FEMALES.

The number of the male population of Great Britain in 1851 was 10,386,048, of the female population 10,735,919. The females exceeded the males by 349,871, and the males at home were 10,223,558; consequently, the females exceeded by 512,361 the males in Great Britain. To 100,000 males at home in 1851, there were 105,012 females; or, in other words, twenty males at home to twenty-one females. The proportion between the sexes at each Census is thus shown:—

Years.	Excess of Females over Males.
1801	180,027
1811	201,598
1821	210,537
1831	297,246
1841	348,950
1851	349,871

Of the children born alive in England and Wales during the thirteen years 1839 to 1851, 3,634,235 were males, and 3,465,629 females; consequently, 104,865 boys were born to every 100,000 girls; while to every 100,000 females living, there were only 96,741 males. In Scotland, there are 110 females to 100 males; in England and Wales 104 females to 100 males.

MARRIED AND UNMARRIED WOMEN.

The following table shows the PROPORTION of MARRIED and UNMARRIED Women in a portion of the country—viz., in Surrey, Kent, (except the districts in London) Sussex, Hampshire, and Berkshire, 1851 :—

	AGES.					Women of the Age of 20 and under 45	Children born in 1850.
	20	25	30	35	40
Women .	73,615	65,810	57,235	49,895	43,694	290,209	49,997
Wives .	21,604	37,839	40,091	37,467	32,805	169,806	In Wedlock. 46,705
Unmarried Women.	52,011	27,971	17,144	12,428	10,849	120,403	Out of Wedlock. 3,292
Widows .	345	1,074	2,030	2,818	3,768	10,035	3,292
Spinsters .	51,666	26,897	15,114	9,610	7,081	110,368

Out of 290,209 women in the above counties 169,806 were wives, and 120,403 were spinsters or widows. 46,705 children were born in wedlock, and 3,292 out of wedlock. To every thirty-six wives ten children were born, and to every 366 unmarried women ten children were born.

Out of 41,916 families having a man and wife at their head 11,947 had no children at home, 8570 had each one child at home, 7,376 had each two children at home, 5,611 had each three children at home, 4027 had each four children at home, 1275 had each six children at home, and one family had twelve children at home. The average number of children to a family, was, however, only two.

INCREASE OF HOUSES BETWEEN 1841 AND 1851.

WALES ..	13,173	1,147	365	4.8	5.0	20.7	20.1

Thus in England and Wales in 1841 there were rather less than five and a half persons to each house. In 1851 there were exactly five and a-half persons to each house. The rule—a family to a house—generally prevails. This is what we should expect. The desire of having a house and home to one's self is strong in the English character. The feeling is favourable to the growth of domestic virtues, and where it is the expression of a proper ambition, ought by all means to be encouraged. But there is a considerable population occupying no houses at all,—sleeping in barns, in tents, and in the open air; comprising, with some honest, some unfortunate people out of employment, or temporarily employed, gypsies, beggars, strollers, vagabonds, vagrants, outcasts, criminals. The number of these classes returned was 9,972 in barns, and 8,277 in the open air. This is less than the actual number, as it was impossible to obtain the number correctly. It is mentioned in one instance that a tribe of gypsies struck their tents, and passed into another parish, in order to escape enumeration.

PROPORTION OF TOWN AND COUNTRY POPULATION.

The villages, large and small, in Great Britain are 17,150 in number, and stand on an average two and a half miles apart. The number of towns of various magnitudes, either market towns, country towns, or cities, was 815,—580 in England and Wales, 225 in Scotland, and 10 in the Channel Islands. The population amounted to 10,556,288 in the 815 towns, and to 10,403,189 in small towns without markets, and villages and detached houses. The population in town and country may, therefore, be said to be EQUAL. In the country there were about five acres (5·3) to a person, in the towns about five persons (5·2) to an acre. The density in the country was 120 persons to a square mile, in the towns 3,337 persons to a square mile. The fact, that the town and country population is equal, is a very important one, and furnishes an answer to assertions which have been made by political orators for party purposes.

EMIGRATION.

YEARS.	PERSONS EMIGRATED.
From 1821 to 1831 .	274,317
„ 1831 to 1841 .	717,913
„ 1841 to 1851 .	1,693,516
	2,685,746

The total number of persons who emigrated from 1821 to 1851 was two millions six hundred and eighty-five thousand, seven hundred and forty-six. Had all these persons remained at home, the population, including Ireland, would have amounted to thirty millions.

Such is a very brief recapitulation of the leading facts of the Census.
